DETAILED ACTIONElection/Restrictions

Claims 2-10 remain withdrawn (for the reasons set forth in Paper No. 7, 1st paragraph) from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b), as being drawn to a nonelected invention, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. The newly added claim 14 is also withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b), as being drawn to a nonelected invention, there being no allowable generic or linking claim because the claim is drawn to method of using the product of claim 11 to elicit an immune response and the method is a different invention because the elected invention and the method claimed in claim 14 are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product such as screening other polymorphic mucin encoding polynucleotides.

This application contains claims 2-10, and 14 drawn to an invention nonelected with traverse in Paper No. 6. A complete reply to the final rejection must include cancelation of nonelected claims or other appropriate action (37 CFR 1.144) See MPEP § 821.01.

Claims 1-14 are pending and claims 1, and 11-13 are examined on merits.

Double Patenting

Claim 1 remains rejected for reason of record and the new claims 11-13 are also rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claim 1 of U.S. Patent No. 6,054,438 because applicant has not supplied the terminal disclaimer. The expression vectors of claims 11-13 encoding the various protein comprising the repeat sequences are obvious variant of an expression vectors encoding "an antigen which comprises an antigenically active segment...of a tandem repeat sequence of the core protein of a human polymorphic epithelial mucin..."

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

Claim 1 remains rejected for reason of record and the new claims 11-13 are also rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as containing subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention.

Applicant argues that the amended claim 1 is drawn to DNA obtainable using the recited probes. This argument is not persuasive because the specification as originally filed does not teach a DNA sequence encoding the full length size protein as stated in the previous Office action. The priority of the instant application goes back to 1987 and it appears that that the chemical structure of a DNA molecule encoding the full size core protein of a human polymorphic epithelial mucin was not known until 1990 when Marjolijn et al (1990, J Biol Chem vol. 265, pages 5573-8) published the structures at Fig. 5 at page 5577. Note Bonfrer (EB of IDS, Paper No. 10, 1995, Ned Tijdschr Klin Chem, vol. 20, pages 301-304) for the general state of art about discovery of mucin sequences and genetic polymorphisms associated with the sequence.

Applicant further argues claim 11 does not require the expression vector encoding a naturally occurring full-length size protein and the skilled worker can readily synthesize DNA to encode a polypeptide comprising one or more of the disclosed repeat sequence. However, this argument is not persuasive because applicant argument is not commensurate in scope of the claim. The claim as written includes a DNA encoding the full-length core protein such as the unpredictable sequences taught by Marjolijn et al and other DNA molecules encoding a varied repeat sequence due to allelic variances in the repeat sequence. Further claims 12 and 13 are also drawn to drawn to a genus of unpredictable species the specification does not describe such as a DNA molecule encoding the full-length core protein of a human polymorphic epithelial mucin.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
